2020 award winner ($25,000)

Sophia Xu | Scholarship recipient from Murphy, TX

Sophia's cousin was diagnosed with autism when he was two years old. Inspired by his family's struggles to connect with him, she developed The Helping Hoodie to help ease his symptoms of sensory overload. This weighted hoodie provides a sense of physical security to those who wear it. Sophia created the prototype and then started working with the UNT Autism Center in Texas to host product review days, allowing numerous children to test the hoodie. The Helping Hoodie has won several competitions, including the grand prize at the Project Invent national competition, and received grants through GoFundMe, GivesBack Team and the Kurt Giessler Foundation.
